ROON NO. 1.—CONTEST BETWEEN AN ASSIGNEE AND AN ATTACHING CREDITOR.—John C. Hall ex. E. S. Higgins & Co., and Henry Kasaler and Higgins & Co. ex. Henry Falls. Judge Hoadly disposed of these cases, in which the action was brought to determine the right to the proceeds of the carpets sold by the Sheriff, on the execution or order of sale in the case of Higgins ex. Falls. Hall claims as assignee for the benefit of the creditors of Falls. The question in the case is whether the attachment of Higgins & Co. has priority in time over the assignment executed by Falls.

The attachment of Higgins was levied on the 18th of Oricher last. The assignment was executed some days before, but was not accepted until after the levy.

The Court, under the circumstances, held that Higgins appeared in the ordinary position of a creditor; a diligent creditor, who obtained information from, or through Falls, or his family, which enabled him to get priority; and did not think the facts such as to offer a legal obstruction to his enforcing his levy. Judgment for Higgins & Co.

About two o'clock yesterday afternoon a fire broke out in the feed store of Benjamin Buckley, at No. 77 Mill-street, between Third and Fourth, which was entirely destroyed, together with its contents. The building was quite small, however, and the loss will not exceed $1,000, which was fully covered by insurance.

was quite small, however, and the loss will not exceed $1,000, which was fully covered by insurance.

The tenement house belonging to Henry Depker, at No. 444 Third-street, also caught and was damaged to the amount of $250, while a number of families met with small losses of furniture by fire and water, which will make an aggregate of about $500. Depker's loss is also fully covered by insurance.

An accident occurred during the progress of the fire that should be a warning to our City Council and the Board of Improvements. In crossing the bridge over the Whitewater Canal at Mill-street the steamengine "A. B. Latta" broke through, and with much difficulty was prevented from being precipitated into the canal. The structure, however, was strengthened by temporary piers, and after three hours' labor the engine was raised and subsequently removed. rary piers, and after three hours' labor the engine was raised and subsequently removed. Several of our canal bridges are in the most dilapidated condition, and for a long time we have feared an accident in consequence of their neglect, which would shock the entire community. The one at Main-street is particularly unsafe, and deserves, as we hope it will receive, the immediate attention of the authorities.

MECHANICS' AND MANUFACTURESS' EXCHANGE.—At the meeting of the Mechanics' and Manufacturers' Exchange, yesterday morning, the report of the Committee on Statistics, published in the Press yesterday morning, was severely commented upon, and after a long discussion, referred back to the Committee. It appears that the manufacturing interests of the city have not been fairly dealt with, and that the aggregate amount of the money invested in the different branches of business placed entirely too low. The Committee, in all probability, will amend their report in such a manner, as to make it not only correct, but also acceptable to the not only correct, but size acceptable to the Board.

Passonat.—We learn with regret that J. R. Baldridge, Esq., an old and well-known citizen of this city, is now lying at his residence on George-street, near Cutter, in an apparently moribund condition, and that his friends entertain no hope of his recovery. His illness has been long continued, and, we doubt not, his numerous friends will join us in the wish that the rumor which gave rise to this paragraph may be exaggerated, and also, in the hope that he may yet be spared to them and his family for many years to come.

Wood's THEATER.-The audience at this establishment last night, to witness the performance of Richard III was very large and brilliant, and the play passed off in the most agreeable manner. We have already spoken of Edwin Booth's impersonation have airceady speken of Edwin Booth's impersonation of the "Duke of Gloster," and have little to add to what has heretofore been said. In the detail of his art in this part he is almost perfect; and although there is an opportunity for a better display of a few of the characteristics of the tymat as drawn by Shakspears, his portrayal is really great.

NATIONAL THEATER.—Lortzing's opera of NATIONAL THEATER.—Lortzing's opera of The Carr and Zimmermon will be presented at this establishment this evening. The orchestral music under the direction of Professor Barus is admirably performed; the choruses by the Hasanner-Chor are sung in the most effective manner, and the charac-ters of "Mary" by Fran Kenkel and the "Burgo-master" by an amateur, are very agreeably rendered. As a whole, for an amateur performance, the opera is well performed, and should be heard by all the lovers.

SMITH & NIXON'S HALL.—The performance of Hooley & Campbell's Minetrels drew another large and enthusiastic audience to Smith & Nixon's Hall last hight, and from present appearances will con-tinue to do so during the week.

The Ohio opposite this city has been de-clining slowly since our last—having fallen up to last evening about one fout—and was receding at the rate of one inch per heur, leaving about forty-eight feet in the channel to Louisville. The water will in all probability be falling more rapidly to-duy. Re-specting the condition of navigation at other points our relegraphic dispatches give the latest intelli-gence.

Progress of the Quarrel Between the French LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

Times writes on the 20th ult.

The Paris correspondent of the New York

Times writes on the 20th ult.

The Imperial family, or rather the Palais Royal branch of it, was thrown into consternation a week ago, by the appearance of the seventeenth volume of Thiers's Consulate and the Empire. This volume contained a letter from Mr. Jerome Bonaparte, of Baltimore, inserted under constraint of the law at the end of the volume, correcting M. Thiers's history of the findrings of his father with Miss Patterson, of Baltimore, as related in the eighth volume of the same work.

In order that the reader may comprehend
what follows, it is well to state that the Baltimore Bonaparte, if his claims to the legitimacy were admitted by the Imperial family of France, would become heir to the throne next after the son of Napoleon III and the old Ex-King Jerome. It was important therefore to the Prince Napoleon, who now occupies this relation to the succession, and to his sister, the Princess Mathilde, children of the Ex-King Jerome, that the legitimacy
of their elder paternal brother, the Baltimore
Bonaparte, should be declared null.

When Mr. Jerome Bonaparte, of Baltimore, and his son, Lieutenant Bonaparte, of the United States Army, came to France in 1855,
and asked to be declared French citizens, it was with the expectation that they would be declared members of the Imperial Family.
They did not know that resistance would be made to their carrying the name of Bonaparte, till the son had accepted service in the French Army. Then arose a discussion (of which the legal history follows,) Prince Napoleon and the Princess Mathilde endeavoring to force their half-brother and his son to assume the name of Bonaparte, when he saw the manner in which M. Thiers had described the marninge and divorce of his mother, in the eight volume of the Consulate and the Emarr, immediately wrote to the distinguished manner in which M. Thiere had described the marriage and divorce of his mother, in the eighth volume of the Consulate and the Empire, immediately wrote to the distinguished historian a reclamation against its truthfulness, and after a time obtained a judgment before a tribunal condemning him to insert the reclamation in the seventeenth volume, the reclamation in the seventeenth volume, before a tribunal condemning him to insert the reclamation in the seventeenth volume, then about to appear.

When this volume appeared a week ago, with Mr. Bonaparte's reclamation, the volume was seized by the police, and suppressed; for in this reclamation, I am told, appear the words bigamist, as applied to the Prince Jerome, and basiards, as applied to the Prince Napoleon and the Princess Mathilde.

The suppression of a volume of M. Thiers' History was too important a procedure not to engage the anxious consideration of the Emperor. The Family Council was therefore called together, and after due deliberation it was determined that the suppression should be maintained. The Emperor, however, wiser than the Council, decided otherwise. He said that the volume, with its appended reclamation, should appear, but that it should be answered. The Prince Napoleon, as being the most directly interested person, was charged with the duty of writing the reply. The volume again appeared yesterday, containing the reclamation of Mr. Jerome Bonaparte, of Baltimore, in a modified form, and the reply of the Prince Napoleon.

The Skeleton Panther and his Victim. From "Hemlock Sketches," in Porter's Spirit of the Times, we extract the following: Spirit of the Times, we extract the following:

The victim was a young physician, who hung out at the Blockhouse, wilage, and had, it is said, more love for, and more skill in, shooting than surgery. Some ten or twelve miles from the Blockhouse is a place called the "English Settlement," and between the two places an unbroken forest extends nearly the whole way; there is no road through, but the settlers have "blazed a line," and on this line the Doctor started one Autumn morning for the settlement. He took his gun, of course, and also expressed an intention of being absent a week or more, if the hunting proved good.

leading from the corpse to a thicket, but the leaves were falling, and after a long trial, they could follow it no longer.

It is worthy of note that an old hunter of that party gave it as his belief, after washing and closely examining the corpse, that the panther had had his under jaw broken by the shot, and consequently could not eat or bite the body. Good dogs were brought to the spot the day after the body was found, but nothing came of it, and the conclusion was that the panther had crawled off to a tnicket and died of his wound; that it was a panther no one who saw the body or heard the story even doubted.

no one who saw the body or heard the story even doubted.

This was in November. In the April following, some children, who had been playing in the road at the settlement, rushed into a house nearby, wild with affright, and attempting incoherently to describe something of a most fearful aspect, that was trying to get over a brush fence into the road.

"It's long as a horse, ane got bloody eyes," one little fellow said.

The children were too much accustomed to the sight of wild animals to make such a fuss without cause, and a couple of men, who heard the yarn, started up the road immediately to the spot indicated by the children. Sure enough, there was a gaunt, spectre-like skeleton, trying, in a maundering, feeble manner to worm himself through the fence into the road, falling on his side at times from sheer exhaustion, and only able to regain his feet after repeated trials; tottering and stumbling at every slight obstruction in his path, and totally incapable of inflicting injury on any living thing. He was an object of pity rather than fear.

It was the panther, who had managed for five long months to keep himself alive without he least assistance from his under jaw, which was hopelessly shattered, and must have precluded the possibility of eating, in the proper sense of the word. In his wounded and exhausted condition, he must have managed to exist by catching mice and "such small deer" as he could tuck into his throat with a paw, and swallow without mastication. Death must have been a relief throat with a paw, and swallow without mastication. Death must have been a relief to him, and he suffered himself to be knocked in the head without a snarl. He was a large specimen, measuring nearly eleven feet from tip to tip, and with his broken, decaying law, skin hanging loosely over the anakelike vertebrae, and bloodshot, famished eyes, must have been a walking nightmare to took

Democratic Convention

Washington, April 17.—The President, today, transmitted to the Senate, copies of additional correspondence with foreign governments, concerning the rights of American naturalized citizens abroad. It is conducted throughout in good temper, the United States in all cases repudiating the doctrines of perpetual allegiance. It appears, from these documents, that twelve years ago, the British Government, at the instance of Minister Bancroft, released two naturalized Irishmen, who were suspected of aiding in the rebellion, and engaged in treasonable practices. Lord Palmersion, however, declares that foreign-born subjects of Great Britain, who may have become naturalized in a foreign country, but return to the Kingdom, are as amenable, as any other of Her Majesty's subjects, to any laws which may be enforced, either of a permanent or temporary nature.

The Senate to day confirmed Maj. Elisha
G. English as United States Marshal for Indiana.

The New Orleans Beginner of Samulary

G. English as United States Marshal for Indiana.

The New Orleans Picayone of Saturday contains an extract from a private letter, dated Mexico, March 18, stating that the British Minister has proposed a truce of six months at the utmost, during which a Congress is to be elected by the different States of the Republic.

This Congress is to be united in Jalapa, which is to be declared neutral ground, under the protection of the English Government, and, if necessary, of English troops. The Congress voted by the nation is to make a new Constitution, which is to be recognized, protected and enforced by England.

The clergy disapprove of the proposition.

The clergy disapprove of the proposition, but if they refuse it the English Minister will immediately take his passports and leave for Vera Cruz, where he will recognize the Juaces Government.

The subject of adjournment over to the Conventions was considered and defeated. Yeas, 20; nays 30.

Mr. Slidell offered a resolution providing for the adjournment of the Senate three days at a time, from April 9 to May 1. Laid the ground that the claim has already been rejected by the Postmaster-General and Court of Claims.

Without acting thereon the Senate adtion, which was read for information, instructing the Committee on Public Expenditures to report a bill reducing the compensation of members of Congress to $8 per diem for each day of actual service; and providing also that when both Houses by joint resolution adjourned to attend a political Convention, the members voting therefor shall not receive pay during the recess. [Laughter.] Mr. Sherman objected to the resolution. Mr. Houston understood that some gentlemen drew their pay when paired off and absent; if so, he wanted this abuse corrected.

The House went into committee on the Deficiency Appropriation Bill.

Mr. Conkling reviewed the President's position in regard to slavery in the Territories as expressed in his annual message. The inhabitants of the free States have ever sought by moral and political forces to dissuade and discourage slavery. The contentions on this subject have given rise to bravado in this hall on both sides, and have lashed the public mind into intense activity. From this time forth we are to have results, not argument, of issues, not compromises. The free States insist that slavery shall remain legalized only in slaveholding States, and even there its increase must be unaided by piracy. They insist that slavery shall remain legalized only in slaveholding States, and even there its increase must be unaided by piracy. They have an unaiterable determination that slavery shall not range this continent; there is even hope that in its abiding place it will wither and die. This is the prayer of humanity, not the mission of a party. If the Supreme Court is infalliable, then the Constitution of the continuation of the
